JackpotRush may use personal information for targeted advertising, including through advertising or marketing technologies that help us measure campaigns or present advertising based on activity or interests.

We Do Not Sell Personal Information for Money

JackpotRush does not sell personal information in exchange for monetary consideration.

However, privacy laws in some U.S. states use broader definitions of terms such as “sale,” “sharing,” “targeted advertising,” or “cross-context behavioral advertising.”

As a result, certain disclosures of identifiers, Internet activity, device information, advertising identifiers, or similar information to advertising or analytics providers may be legally characterized as a “sale” or “sharing” even where no money is exchanged.

Where applicable law gives an eligible User the right to opt out of:
